
Mark Farber

Mark Farber is President and co-founder of Cedar Energy Investors, which finances solar power systems for commercial and nonprofit organizations. A founder of Evergreen Solar, makers of crystalline silicon solar power products, he was president and CEO for almost a decade. He was chairman of the Solar Alliance and a board member of the Solar Energy Industries Association. Previously, Mark worked at Mobil Solar Energy Corp., the solar division of Mobil Corporation, where he led marketing, sales, and partnerships. He was also a consultant at Temple, Barker & Sloane, where he advised utilities, manufacturers, and government agencies on energy, economic, business, and policy issues. Mark has a Bachelor of Science in industrial engineering and operations research from Cornell University and a Master of Science in management from MIT's Sloan School.